TWO RAILROADS ARE IN HANDS OF TEUTONS

Berlin Says Progress is Being Made Although Servians are Putting Up Fight Along Three Fronts.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—German and Austro-Hungarian cavalry are astride the Belgrade-Nish railway, south of the former Serb capital, and also the railway that stretches into the interior of Serbia and Semendria. All of the promontory of Serbian territory formed by the junction of the Danube and Save river, is now in Teutonic hands despite the violent resistance of the Serbs in rear guard actions.

British artillery and forces of marines under Admiral Ernest Troubridge of the English navy, that were defending Belgrade, are reported to have retreated in the direction of Kuzadak.

Dispatches from the Balkan theater today continued to report favorable progress for the Teutonic armies of invasion under Field Marshal von Mackensen, but it is admitted that the Servians are putting up a severe fight all along the Drina, Save and Danube fronts.

Military experts declare that the effect of the capture of Belgrade will be very important not only from a political standpoint, but also because it gives the Teutons a good crossing over the Danube and an excellent base.

Public buildings in Belgrade are being turned into military hospitals. Among the buildings which will be used for such a purpose are the Palace, the Baryatkar mosque and the Skupstchina building.

ITALY WILL ACT.

ROME, Oct. 11.—Premier Salandra yesterday before King Victor Emmanuel at army headquarters in the Italian intervention in the Balkans, according to a dispatch from Udine.

Cleveland Newspaper Photographer to be Questioned. Said to Have Aided Spy.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 11.—According to Washington dispatches published in the Cleveland News today Irving Guy Ries, Cleveland newspaper photographer who Saturday returned from the war front, is to be questioned by government detectives concerning the alleged double use of his passport in England. Ries has been under surveillance since he arrived in New York several days ago, it is said.

"Charges against Ries were preferred three weeks ago by the British embassy, who said that the Ries passport had been used to protect a German spy in England," says the News' Washington dispatch.

"It is understood here, that Ries is not accused definitely by the British embassy of being a party to the passport fraud, but the ambassador has demanded a full investigation to establish either Ries' guilt or innocence.

CHURCHES TO OBSERVE GOOD WILL SUNDAY

Special Services Are to be Held in City Churches on Nov. 14.

Ministers of South Bend churches will assist in the "Good will" campaign to raise $40,000 for the city's charitable institutions by preaching sermons concerning the work of these organizations on Sunday, Nov. 14. This day was set aside as "Good Will Sunday" at the meeting of the Ministerial association at the Y. M. C. A. Monday morning.

Rabbi Cronbach, chairman of the publicity committee of the "Good Will" campaign, and Rev. C. A. Decker, sub-chairman, will have charge of the arrangements for the special services on that Sunday. Although it is probable that special programs for that date will be held in some of the churches, the plans made by the Ministerial association include only special sermons. Literature telling of the campaign which starts on the following day will be distributed on "Good Will" Sunday.

Preparatory meetings for the simultaneous evangelistic campaign which will start on Jan. 23 will begin on Jan. 2, according to plans made at the meeting Monday morning. All of the pastors of South Bend and Mishawaka will cooperate in both the preparatory meetings and the evangelistic campaign which will be held in all of the churches of the city.

Noon meetings in the downtown district, shop meetings and prayer meetings will be held during the three weeks before the real campaign begins. Talks on the campaign were given Monday morning by Rev. M. A. Appleby, Rev. C. A. Lippincott, Rev. John Alexander, Rev. H. B. Hostetter and Rev. L. M. Edwards of Mishawaka.

British artillery and forces of marines under Admiral Ernest Troubridge of the English navy, that were defending Belgrade, are reported to have retreated in the direction of Kuzadak.

CLOTHING IS WANTED

Calls Are Being Made on the Associated Charities.

During the last two weeks there have been many calls upon the Associated Charities for clothing. The association is making out a new list of those persons who have or may have clothing which they can give to the association. It is desired that such persons notify the charities as to what they can do in this respect. Because of the lack of space in which to store clothing it is desired that those who can give will hold whatever they may have until there is a call for it.

At 3 o'clock this afternoon the first council of the season of the second division of those workers associated with the charities was held under the leadership of Rabbi Cronbach. These councils are held for the purpose of considering individual cases among those who seek aid. Representatives of all charity organizations and churches, in four divisions, meet once each month for this purpose.

BELL TRIAL AT CAPITAL NEARING END

Special Prosecutor Says So-called City Hall Machine Would Have Been Impossible Without a Lead.

CASE EXPECTED TO JURORS ON TUESDAY

Former District Attorney Charles W. Miller Makes Strong Address on Behalf of His Client the Defendant.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—Special Pros. Joseph Roach today made the second argument for the state in the conspiracy trial of Mayor Bell.

Roach started off with a plea for himself, deprecating the fact that personalities had sprung up among opposing counsel during the taking of evidence and suggesting that they should not enter into consideration of merits of the case.

The question of reasonable doubt was explained to the jury by Mr. Roach, who argued that the case should not be considered item by item, but as a whole. He referred to the power of the mayor and contended that the action of the so-called "city hall machine" could not have been spontaneous all over the city unless it had a fountain head.

Nears Home Stretch. The trial of Mayor Bell was on the home stretch when Roach began the second speech for the defense. Atty. Michael A. Ryan and Henry Spaulin will follow Roach and Pros. Rucker will put the finishing touches on the state's argument. Judge Elchorn's instructions to the jury probably will be given before sunset Tuesday.

The speech of Former Dist. Atty. Charles W. Miller (Republican) counsel for Mayor Bell, was a most thorough presentation of the entire case in behalf of his client.

Roach, referring to Mayor Bell said: "What kind of a man have we here? He was attorney for Crawford Fairbanks, who was connected with the case in federal court and a man named Walsh, a stool-pigeon now serving a term in prison that Fairbanks should be serving. He embodied the idea of the liquor interests in politics."

Roach cited Bell's connection with certain legislation which he said showed that Bell was out for the "long money."

Speaking of the basis for civic righteousness, Roach added he had asked the mayor if he had ever gambled and the mayor replied he had "at the Denison hotel, with gentlemen."

Gentlemen of the kind that take $500 and do them up in $1 and $2 bills with an action from which the stench arises to heaven so it will never come down," said Roach.

GREEK VESSEL SUNK BY TEUTON SUBMARINE

ATHENS, Oct. 11.—The Greek steamship Dimitrios, 2,508 tons, has been sunk in the Mediterranean sea southeast of Sicily, by a German submarine, it was officially announced today. All the passengers were saved by the French mail steamer Rhone.

The Dimitrios was commanded by Capt. S. Danioles, and hailed from Andros. She was built in England in 1912. It is supposed that the submarine either came from an Austrian base in the Adriatic or elsewhere on her way from the North sea to the Dardanelles. The scene of the Dimitrios' destruction is close to the British naval station at Malta.

UMVIR—Rigler, Evans, Klem and O'Loughlin.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Boston fell on Alexander here this afternoon and by taking the third game have the edge of the Philadelphia Nationals. The games now stand two to one and the Sox have the advantage. They play here again tomorrow.

The score was 2 to 1. Beautiful weather and the biggest crowd that ever saw a ball game greeted the Phillies and the Red Sox this afternoon. The park seated 44,000 persons—and every seat was filled before the game began. Between 2,500 and 4,000 stading room tickets were sold, bringing the crowd up to something more than 47,000.

The field was dry and as fast as chain lightning, the sun shone brightly and there was in the air only an exhilarating tang—a perfect day for players and spectators, who found overcasts almost useless.

Every one of the 15,000 bleacher seats were sold and occupied in the forenoon and when the Red Sox trotted onto the field at 12:35 p. m., the bleachers gave them a wild ovation.

Phillies Take Field. The Phillies took the field at 12:35 and were greeted with a few cheers and a bit of hand clapping.

The 30-piece band got into action at noon and for two hours vollied the crowd with an assortment of harmony. The sun glared into the eyes of the left fielders during practice, causing them to misjudge several flies.

Baseball supplanted beams as the civic dish here today. The natives served it up to the visitors and among themselves on the streets, over the counters, in the cars and everywhere else. It wasn't "good morning" or "howdy do." The salutation had

BOSTON REFUSES TO GET EXCITED

None of the Ecst That Marked the First Two Games at Philadelphia.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Though Boston today held a record crowd, Boston refused to get excited. One might have imagined the Hobbites getting a little bit worked up when they spilled the tea that time in the bay, but it was plain to the visitor today that the real Bostonian was determined not to let a little old world championship cricket—er-aw, beg pardon—baseball game upset the routine of his business or the even tenor of his day.

There was none of the ecst that marked the first two games in Philadelphia. There were Hobbites—o-phiophiles. There were no gaily caparisoned automobiles—there were plenty of cars but they lacked decorations. Whereas at the Phillies' park the gold badges, half dollar size, for the sport writers, hung from broad crimson ribbons, in Boston the scribbles were given small and inconspicuous lapel buttons.

Instead of the flamboyant seat cards as big as saucers that gave the correspondent entries at the Phillies' park and proclaimed their calling shamelessly to the world, in Boston they have small perforated cardboard tickets that they may carry modestly in their pockets. Philadelphia was flag-decked all over the place. Today nothing in Boston displayed a flag except the government buildings and the public schools.
